

Dyslexia - Does anyone here know what dyslexia is? For those of you who don't know, I'll tell you about it. Simply - Dyslexia is having difficulty with written words.

I have dyslexia and I'm very good at maths but not that good at reading and writing

There is a way that I can cope quite well.

If I try thinking of a word like "the" as a picture and not in writing, it's a lot easier for me. Lets try something, close your eyes, come on I'm serious, close them. Now picture this. There is a kid kicking a ball over there. What do you see.? You see a kid kicking a ball and you see over - like over a hill. But did you see "there"? There is no picture for there, its not a tree, its not a car, for me there is no "there"! So that's the problem that you have with Dyslexia. You can't see all the words.

There is also some good things about Dyslexia, It actually gives you the ability to see 3 D in your mind, If you gave me a 2 D picture like a building, then I can picture it 3 D in my mind. This is an ability that many people that make movies and design buildings have. Like how they made avitar. They would have to start in 2d and then convert it to 3d and I can do this easily in my head.

So a new 3D TV won't be much good in my house!

Let me give you a little list of people who have dyslexia, oops had (as their all dead)! And became quite famous you may have heard of them. Like Leonardo Davinchi, designer and artist, Beethoven who composed music He was not the dog. John Britton a famous engineer, Walt Disney - well we all know who he was, and Albert Einstein We all know who he was too.

When I first started school it was very difficult, I didn't see the letters like the other kids, so if you have a brother or sister or even a friend with Dyslexia be patient. You might need them to help you with your maths or tech drawing one day.

By me standing up here and telling you about Dyslexia maybe you have a better understating of it. The more people that understand it, the more help we can get for our school. There's more of us than you think and more than they know of.
